New: Add a Buncee Tab into a Microsoft Teams Meeting

- You can now have a Buncee option within a Microsoft Teams Meeting

- This will let you view a Buncee that everyone can see and interact with (not collaborate) you can even add a question to each page of the Buncee

- When you launch your Microsoft Teams meetings you will see an icon for Buncee which when the meeting host clicks the icon will deploy the Buncee for others to see

- As of now this option is not supported when you schedule a Teams Meeting in a channel. This should change soon

- To use this option, schedule a Teams Meeting no in a channel with at least one required participant. Schedule the meeting then click to edit the meeting once added to the meeting calendar. You will now see a plus at the top of the meeting information. Click there to add the Buncee app and then choose which Buncee you want to add to the meeting. It will then display the option to add questions to each buncee slide

Buncee Shares Some Awesome Buncees

- Michael Drezek started a Global Buncee Book where classrooms around the world contributed to create their own page of an entire book. Michael stitched each class page contribution together and made a "global Buncee book" and we had it printed out to make a full on book https://t.co/0zcfgAj63j?amp=1

- Buncee Ambassadors including Amy Storer to share love and appreciation to those who celebrated their holidays in the hospital. People around the world shared their Buncee made cards and these were all shared with hospitals https://t.co/OE1BcuH5YT?amp=1

- Kristina Holzweiss, Barbie Monty & Amy Storer created a board and asked people to share their thanks and appreciation for folks on the frontlines. This board was then shared to a variety of groups, including hospitals, supermarkets, police officers, etc. https://t.co/ZstJ6IHNja?amp=1

- Heather Preston, an AP Lit educator in Texas had her students create Character trading cards using their character analysis from reading 1984 https://t.co/gUBdthcY9B?amp=1

- Jim in the gym, who is a PE educator in NYC. He used Buncee to help his students stay active at home
